Business Here in All Lines Is Gaining Fast

Canvass by Merchants' Association Embracing Every Branch Indicates Period of Depression Has Passed

Present Sales Are Good One Firm Reports Prospects Are Brighter Than They Have Been for 3 Years

Business is improving with great rapidity in virtually all lines in New York City, according to a consensus of business opinion obtained by the Merchants' Association of New York in a canvass embracing nearly all lines of commercial activity.

President Lewis E. Pierson sent circular letters of inquiry to several thousand members of New York firms, to which a large number of answers have been received. The following are representative:

W. C. Runyon, president of the Struthers Furnace Company, manufacturers of pig iron: "While we are not merchants, we are manufacturers, and our business has improved very materially in the last thirty days. From present indications, we would say the business outlook for the future is most hopeful."

Better Than for Three Years
Harvey T. White, of R. Tyson White's Sons, manufacturers of paper boxes: "As to indications for future business prospects, so far as we are personally concerned they are very much brighter than they have been in the last three years. In fact, to-day we are running overtime and taking on as many employees as we can secure. As a comparison with 1919, in the last two months we have booked orders for an amount equal to 25 per cent of our entire sales in 1919, which was an exceptional year, indicating thereby a recovery equal to our year 1919, even allowing 25 per cent of our present orders to apply for deliveries in 1923. I am a firm believer that if we all co-operate and put our shoulders to the wheels of industry we can make them turn over with satisfactory results."

N. L. Yerkes, vice-president and secretary of G. M. Polk, Inc., manufacturers of electrical apparatus: "We anticipate the biggest and busiest spring season that the country has ever experienced. We are backed up in our opinion by present orders in advance for material, and we note in everything we are buying that there is a slow but steady tendency toward advanced prices. We have heard on all sides expressions that business is improving steadily, and many individual statements that 'business is exceedingly good right now.'"

Recent Sales Good
W. Rodman Fay, president of G. Schirmer, Inc., dealers in music and musical supplies: "Our observations indicate that business ahead for us, very nearly approaching the year 1919-20, which were the best years we have had. Sales for the last few months have been remarkably good. The outlook for the future is very bright. Our business is a healthy one and much preferable to a boom which suddenly springs up, and then, according to the laws of nature, comes down with a crash. Let us make true comparisons. Our country is in so much better shape than any I have visited as to make one feel very confident of the future. Our business is not bad; conditions are improving steadily and the future looks bright. Prosperity is in sight and good times are bound to come."

Philip Valk, exporter and importer: "Business is undoubtedly on the up grade. It is not moving up as fast as we would like to see it, but the improvement is a healthy one and much preferable to a boom which suddenly springs up, and then, according to the laws of nature, comes down with a crash. Let us make true comparisons. Our country is in so much better shape than any I have visited as to make one feel very confident of the future. Our business is not bad; conditions are improving steadily and the future looks bright. Prosperity is in sight and good times are bound to come."

State Plans Apple Week To Market Record Crop

Campaign to Stimulate Bulk Sales at Special Price Begins To-morrow

To dispose of the state's native apple crop, one of the largest in history, the New York State Department of Farms and Markets has designated the week from October 31 to November 6 as apple week, during which intensive plans for the sale of domestic apples will be made effective. A similar campaign was carried out in the autumn of 1920.

Joseph Sicker, chairman of the committee of arrangements, who was instrumental in pushing the 1920 campaign, is at the head of this season's effort. Acting on the announcement of Norman D. Chace, acting director of the New York office of the State Department of Farms and Markets, that the apple crop in this state is 106,000,000 bushels in excess of last year's crop, the department has decided to dispose of apples in bulk by offering to consumers during apple week especially home attractive prices for consignments in large volume.

Horace H. Jones, who resigned recently as director of the New York office of the Department of Farms and Markets, is engaged in the formation of a new marketing service for farm products. He has offered his aid to the campaign committee.

Girl Scout Sunday Services Attended by 3,000 in Uniform
Yesterday was Girl Scout Sunday and about 3,000 khaki-clad young women attended special services at the churches of the city. The largest group, Patrick's Cathedral in the morning, mass. Almost a thousand gathered at Temple B'nai Jeshurun, in Eighty-fourth Street, near West End Avenue, at 4 p. m. several hundred attended services at St. Thomas's Episcopal Church, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, where the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires took for his subject the motto of the Girl Scouts, "Be Prepared," and pointed out how they could benefit the community by living up to it.

Liner Brings Animals and 4,316 Birds of Many Species
The United States Lines steamer President Gilmore, from Bremen, docked at Pier 3, Hoboken, yesterday with what is thought to have been the largest consignment of birds and animals ever carried by a Shipping Board boat in her hold.

Among the 4,316 birds were 3,465 canaries, 800 African finches, 182 rice birds, 200 green parrots, seventy-five yellow parrots, twenty laughing doves, twenty tangers, and four cockatoos. The animals included the first Russian bear known to have been brought to this country since the revolution, two Indian squirrels, a weasel and a baboon.

Columbia Freshmen Brighter Than Any of Predecessors

Outrank Previous First-Year Classes in Average Height, Weight and Intelligence, Records Show; Small Boys and Tall Boys of Many Nations

The freshman class of Columbia College this year outranks any freshman class that has preceded it in average height, weight and intelligence, according to figures compiled from registration cards at the university. The average age is seventeen and one-half years; the average height, 5 feet 8 inches, and the average weight, 144 pounds. The highest grades ever recorded in the psychological tests for entrance were made by the class of 1923, said Professor Adam Leroy Jones, director of admissions.

There are sixty-six freshmen more than 6 feet, seven fifteen-year-old boys and fifty of the class are over 165 pounds. Four weigh less than 100 pounds and five weigh more than 200 pounds. The lightest and youngest registrant is twelve-year-old Daniel Berman, of Galveston, who weighs only eighty pounds. The heaviest is Charles William O'Brien, of Lynbrook, L. I., who tips the scale with 250 pounds and holds a heavyweight position on the freshman football team.

The smallest "fresh" is George Henry Muller, of Harrington Park, N. Y., who is 4 feet 8 inches without his "fresh" cap and weighs only 85 pounds. Alfred William Mannheim, of New York City, is the tallest—6 feet 4 inches. He is also a star member of the freshman basketball team.

Eighty-six per cent of the students come from New York City and vicinity, with 12 per cent of this number from New Jersey. Twenty-seven states are represented, as well as students from Burma, China, Corea, Austria, Holland, Sweden, Russia, Hawaii and the Philippines.

A quartet named Williams lead in duplication of names, with only two Smiths and two Joneses listed. There are no Johnsons. The "S"s lead with fifty names and twenty-six "W"s take second place. The longest and shortest names are Ignatius John Gryczanski, of Jersey City, and Farn Chu, a Chinese.

John Yack Kaur, recently from Holland, wrote on his card: "I hope that after a few months all will come right so that I can try to become a good American boy. May this Americanization be useful."

One student from a Western state said that he had written his way through school by conducting a love-letter column, and another said he preached on Sundays to secure the money to go to college.

The class includes a twenty-year-old blind student, T. Teferus, of 2970 Belmont Avenue, New York City. He prepared for entrance in the New York Institute for the Blind.

The foreign students include Quan Yung-kau, of Honolulu; Hwa Ahlan, of Bangkok, Burma; Kalebi Emanuel Wigg, of Stockholm; Harry Lah Khouth, of Saigon, Indo-China; and Henry Parades Jr., of Miami, Fla.

George E. Dunham Dies After Three-Day Illness
Publisher of "The Utica Daily Press" Built Prosperous Up-State Newspaper
UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—George E. Dunham, editor and publisher of "The Utica Daily Press," died at his home here to-day after an illness of three days.

Mr. Dunham was born in Clayville, Oneida County, N. Y., April 6, 1869, the son of the Rev. Dr. Moses Earl Dunham. He was graduated from Hamilton College in 1891. He made his way in life as he had made it through college, with little capital behind him, and by his native shrewdness and ability made himself editor and proprietor of "The Utica Daily Press," which, under his management, became one of the most progressive and prosperous of up-state newspapers.

He had been editor of the paper since 1897. He was vice-president of the Utica Trust and Deposit Company, a trustee of Hamilton College, president of the board of managers of the Utica State Hospital, and a member of the New York State Chamber of Commerce. He is survived by his widow, Helen L. Jones Dunham.

Two Babies Are Born On Cunard Liners

Cameronia, Caronia and Tyrnhenia Reach Port With Large Passenger List

"Mother and child are doing well" was almost the first report from two of the three Cunarders which docked at the Chelsea piers yesterday. The Cameronia's passenger list was swelled by the name of Henia Caronia Jucha. She was born at sea to Mr. and Mrs. Mandel Jucha, who arrived here to visit friends in New York. On the new Tyrnhenia, which entered the bay for the first time yesterday, was John Pryor, son of Mr. Pryor, of New York, and Mrs. J. P. Lloyd, of Schenectady, six days old.

The Cameronia sailed with 940 passengers and reported the same total when she docked. Her second cabin list of 618 was the largest that any liner has brought over this year.

The Caronia brought 747 passengers, among whom were the Hon. John W. Foster, C. V. O., librarian of Windsor Castle and president of the Royal Historical Society, and Mrs. Fortescue, who is here to give a fashion show at the Plaza November 9 for the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club of New York, and the Very Rev. Dr. T. C. Fry, dean of Lincoln, who is here to lecture for the $250,000 fund needed to restore the cathedral over whose chapter he presides.

Part of the present structure was built from 7065, just before the Norman Conquest, but the greater part is the work of St. Hugh, who lived in the thirteenth century.

J. H. Stedman, Mining Magnate, Is Dead at 78

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 29.—J. Harry Stedman, who revived in Rochester the custom of placing a lighted candle in a window of every dwelling at Christmas time, died last night at his home here. He was a prominent figure in the Rochester community and was observed last year at the White House.

Mr. Stedman, who was seventy-eight years old, invented the transfer system now in use by the New York State Railroad.
